The Financial Aid office must monitor satisfactory academic progress for all students receiving Federal and State financial aid to ensure that they are making progress toward completion of their program of study in a reasonable period of time. There are two standards that must be measured: A qualitative (GPA) standard and a quantitative (hours attempted) standard.